Namaskaram!Hello everyone! I was told by my elder sister about the Oxford College of Arts, situated in the HSR Layout, 4th sector, Bengaluru, just about 3.2 kilometres from Maruthinagar, the place where I stayed. I just completed my Bachelor's then and don't know why but got really attracted to this establishment. I researched and thought to try once here for my Master's in Journalism and Mass Communication. Words fall short when actually super set to utter something about the Oxford College of Arts. I have experienced loads of diversified moments with different kinds of people from various walks of life. Faculties I met (teaching staff and the non-teaching staff); they were kind enough to make me feel like a student in true sense. They supported us, guided us, helped us in every possible way they could to take us all a step ahead in this journey of pure blissfulness of knowledge. I am glad to say that they not only extended their helping hand toward us inside the college regarding the education related purpose only. I have also come across faculties who made us feel like a small sweet family. They still! The establishment itself is a masterpiece. It provided us with all the possible equipment, scope, opportunities, and challenges to make us knowledgeable, stronger, courageous, and brave enough to tackle situations smoothly in almost every aspect. The environment that we get here is amazingly wonderful! Students are always encouraged to do something unique and purposeful. The events that are being organized, do not leave anyone feeling like an alien, who moves from different parts of the country and the world as well! All are appreciated and cheered to participate in several events and showcase their talents. Again, classes are superb! It takes place on time no matter what! Teaching techniques are simple, elegant, and most importantly, understandable. Concepts are made clear. The environment is indeed a pleasure to experience. The greenery surrounding the establishment, the coolness, and the peacefulness in the area makes our College much more glittering. The icing on the cake is that everyone enjoys being there as a family. Individuals from different corners fill up your life with unforgettable moments. They teach us lessons for a lifetime. Lessons that prove to be serving at best! I would like to share just a small piece here. Before entering the College I always did fold my hands and prayed and took blessings from the college gate itself every morning and why am I sharing this? It is because our College felt like a temple to me and I owe this pure place a lot. It is holy for me! This place gives you that vibe indeed!

What should I say more? My prayers and best wishes to all our teachers, non-teaching staff, the administrative unit, and all the departments of our College. May God bless us all and show us the right path to do something great for our country and the world. Let us raise the Oxford College of Arts and make this as a mouth piece; frequently opted for. May our students fly with vibrant scores and establish themselves of values!

I promise to be with the Oxford College of Arts till my final sleep. I would love to extend my contributions in every way possible to take our College a step ahead from any corner of the world I am and will be in future. I would be grateful enough to have engaged myself on doing something great to our College for our College. I thank our College a million times for filling my life with an endless horizon of memories and experiences ! Thanks a lot! May God bless us all!
